

CONTENTS

Foreword by James H. Jones, xi

Preface by Allan M. Brandt and Larry R. Churchill, xv

Acknowledgments, xvii

Introduction. More Than a Metaphor:

An Overview of the Scholarship of the Study, 1

Susan M. Reverby

PART I. OVERVIEW

Racism and Research: The Case of the Tuskegee Syphilis Experiment, 15

Allan M. Brandt

Events in the Tuskegee Syphilis Project: A Timeline, 34

Susan E. Bell

PART II. CONTEMPORARY BACKGROUND

The Shadow of the Plantation: Survival, 41

Charles S. Johnson

Shadow on the Land: Syphilis, the White Man's Burden, 59

Thomas Parran

PART III. DOCUMENTING THE ISSUES

Selected Letters between the United States Public Health Service,
the Macon County Health Department, and the Tuskegee Institute, 1932–1972, 73

Syphilis Victims in U.S. Study Went Untreated for 40 Years, 116

Jean Heller

Untreated Syphilis in the Male Negro: Mortality during Twelve Years of Observation, 119

J. R. Heller and P. T. Bruyere

Twenty Years of Followup Experience in a Long-Range Medical Study, 125

Eunice V. Rivers et al.

Interview with Four Survivors, United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare Study, 1973, 132

Testimony by Four Survivors from the United States Senate Hearings on Human Experimentation, 1973, 136

Testimony by Peter Buxton from the United States Senate Hearings on Human Experimentation, 1973, 150

Selections from the Final Report of the Ad Hoc Tuskegee Syphilis Study Panel,
Department of Health, Education and Welfare, 1973, 157

PART IV. THE QUESTION OF TREATMENT

The Tuskegee Study of Untreated Syphilis, 193

R. H. Kampmeier

The Contribution of the Tuskegee Study to Medical Knowledge, 202

Charles J. McDonald

The "Tuskegee Study" of Syphilis: Analysis of Moral versus Methodologic Aspects, 213

Thomas Benedek

Non-Random Events, 236

Barbara Rosenkrantz

PART V. HISTORICAL RECONSIDERATION

The Rhetoric of Dehumanization:

An Analysis of Medical Reports of the Tuskegee Syphilis Project, 251

Martha Solomon [Watson]

The Tuskegee Syphilis Study in the Context of American Medical Research, 266

Susan Lederer

A Case Study in Historical Relativism: The Tuskegee (Public Health Service)
Syphilis Study, 276

John C. Fletcher

The Tuskegee Syphilis Experiment: Biotechnology and the Administrative State, 299

Benjamin Roy

PART VI. RETHINKING THE ROLE OF NURSE RIVERS

An Interview with Nurse Rivers, 321

Helen Dibble and Daniel Williams

Your Silence Will Not Protect You: Nurse Rivers and the Tuskegee Syphilis Study, 340

Evelynn M. Hammonds

Neither Victim nor Villain: Eunice Rivers and Public Health Work, 348

Susan L. Smith

Rethinking the Tuskegee Syphilis Study: Nurse Rivers, Silence, and the Meaning of Treatment, 365

Susan M. Reverby

Reflections on Nurse Rivers, 386

Darlene Clark Hine

